

User Interface & Device

What is Google Now™ ?

Available from Android™ 4.1 onwards, Google Now lets you display local temperatures, trip duration, know the last results of your favorite team and much more.

Google Now™ uses the history of information available in your device. You can adjust the settings for more precise or restricted information.

To launch Google Now™, touch the Google Search bar at the top of any Home screen or open the Google app. On certain devices, you can also swipe up from the bottom of the screen.

You can check the Quick Start Guide that came with your device or available from the Archos.com downloads section to see how to launch Google Now on your device
